

Assistive Technology Overview

Compusult is a reseller and producer of electronic and adaptive devices that reduce the barriers to computer access, workplace access and inclusion in activities. In this session, we can cover products we resell as well as others available in the marketplace.

This course will cover:

- Communication devices for individuals whose speech is not clear or for whom verbal communication is a barrier
- Physical access options for individuals who require adaptive devices to use computer and workplace objects
- Magnification and screen software for blind or low vision computer users, as well as portable magnification options for reading other material
- Tips on using the adaptive features of mobile devices
- Overview of training material format recommendations that ensure accessibility for screen reading technology

You will receive:

- Reference guide to options available for different types and levels of disability
- Guide to accessible materials
